Technical

The blow away vase was born through a digital process of creating an impossible situation with impossible consequences. CAD modeling, animation and distortion all played a valuable role in the development of the form. To begin with an original vase was created with CAD software and then subjected to a directional wind force that reshaped the form of vase in a way that is impossible in reality. The animation of this was then paused in time, enabling technicians to use this frame to model the new form, develop a highly intricate mould and then preserve the vase in the beauty of porcelain.
